Introduction

The Housing Ombudsman introduced a new Complaint Handling Code on 1st April 2024. The code is designed to improve how housing providers manage complaints, ensuring a fair and efficient process for Residents.

The key aspects are:

- Clear Guidelines: The code outlines clear expectations for how complaints should be handled, emphasising the importance of a structured approach.
- Accessibility: It encourages housing providers to make their complaint processes easy to access and understand for all Residents.
- Timeliness: The code stresses the importance of timely responses, aiming to resolve issues quickly and prevent escalation.
- Transparency: Providers are expected to keep complainants informed throughout the process and to explain decisions clearly.
- Learning and Improvement: Housing providers are encouraged to learn from complaints to improve services and prevent similar issues in the future.
- Compliance Monitoring: The Ombudsman will monitor adherence to the code and can take action against providers that fail to comply.

Each year Tring Charities will complete a self-assessment against the Complaint Handling Code. This is available to view on the Contact page of our website <https://tringcharities.co.uk/contact/>

The Trustees have also completed a review of the Complaints Policy to ensure compliance with the requirements of the new Code. This is also available to view on the Contact page of our website <https://tringcharities.co.uk/contact/>
